LA Charger to Donate CPR Kits to Lynwood High Schools

WHAT: Los Angeles Chargers defensive tackle Corey Liuget will donate 10 CPR kits to Lynwood high schools as part of the American Heart Association's CPR in Schools program. Liuget will speak to Lynwood High School student-athletes about the importance of CPR while AHA representatives provide hands-on training to the students.

The LHS girls basketball team, which reached the CIF Southern Section Division 2AA final last month, will attend as will a group of LHS football players.

WHEN: Wednesday, April 18
Liuget media availability, 9:50 a.m.
CPR kit presentation and training, 10 a.m. to 11 a.m.

WHERE: Lynwood High School library
4050 E. Imperial Way
Lynwood, CA

MORE: The training kits, valued at $10,000, will serve Lynwood, Firebaugh and Vista high schools.

The donation stems from Liuget's 2017 NFL Season Win/Sack Initiative, where he pledged to donate one CPR in Schools kit for every Chargers team win and every sack he recorded during the season.

MEDIA: Contact Jahmal Corner for more information at 206-579-4432.
