Baldwin Park High Teacher Named LA County Teacher of the Year

Raquel Viramontes is one of 16 teachers who will represent the county in the state's top teacher competition

BALDWIN PARK – Raquel Viramontes, a nine-year science teacher at Baldwin Park High School, was named one of 16 Los Angeles County Teachers of the Year on Sept. 29 by the Los Angeles County Office of Education in recognition of her dedication and passion to her students and profession.

Viramontes was named Baldwin Park Unified School District's Teacher of the Year in spring.

Her award was announced during a lunch at the Hilton ballroom in Universal City attended by some 600 educators and family members. Viramontes accompanied by family, friends, colleagues, Board of Education members and Superintendent Dr. Froilan N. Mendoza.

The Baldwin Park Unified contingent erupted with cheers and applause when Viramontes was the first teacher recognized at the event.

"I feel very humble," she said. "There are so many teachers who are deserving of the award and I feel blessed and lucky that I was picked. I'm glad that I can be here to represent the teaching profession."

The honor puts Viramontes in an elite group of teachers which represents the best of the 72,000 public school educators in the California's most populous county. She advances to the California Teacher of the Year competition.

Viramontes teaches biology, forensics and human anatomy, using project-based instruction to bring lessons to life for her students.

She holds a Master of Arts in education from Claremont Graduate University, a Bachelor of Arts in biology from Pomona College and an associate degree from Rio Hondo College.
